

16th July 2021

Dear Julie Marson, MP Hertford & Stortford,

I am writing to you once again as a constituent to express my dissatisfaction with your voting in favour of mandatory COVID vaccination for care home workers.

I am writing you an open letter so that it becomes a matter of public record that you have overstepped the line from supporting coercive measures in the form of previous policy interventions to compulsory measures that could result in atrocity.

The first question I expect that you can answer is what evidence you have studied that demonstrates the effectiveness of COVID vaccines helping to reduce onward transmission. This must be the only possible reason for justifying the compulsory vaccination of one individual to protect another?

And yet, according to the European Centre for Disease Control and Prevention (ECDC), "COVID-19 vaccines have been evaluated for their efficacy and effectiveness against symptomatic COVID-19 infection and for reducing and/or preventing mild, moderate, or severe COVID-19 disease, including mortality. However, the vaccine trials have not been designed to measure reduction in transmission risk from infected vaccinated individuals to susceptible contacts".¹

Worse than this, the evidence in the public empirical data points towards COVID vaccines not only being ineffective in reducing mortality but also being responsible for the COVID-labelled mortality this past winter.

In England, the deaths reduced by COVID vaccines is zero. The deaths caused by COVID vaccines is at least 24,000.

You may think this is an audacious claim but it is supported by careful analysis of the empirical data that I include below.

I do not have to be right and you do not need to consider my evidence. But, if I am right, can you be as confident that you have acted in accordance with the facts? Are you prepared to put forward the diligent research you have undertaken or studied before potentially condemning someone to death in return for keeping their job?

If I am right, the implication for you is even more profound. It signals that, irrespective of the lack of proof of efficacy of all previous policy interventions, those enacted since mid-Dec are in response to a problem of your own making. It signals that the natural SARS-CoV-2 epidemic was indeed over by the end of spring and the endemic phase in autumn was no more severe than a regular respiratory disease season.

Regards,

Joel Smalley, Hertford

DISCUSSION

Population mortality follows Gompertz distributions². This is as a result of a single mortality event affecting a population in a heterogenous fashion whereby the more susceptible or vulnerable you are the more quickly you succumb.

When the mortality distribution ceases to follow the Gompertz function, it can be explained either by:

1. an interruption or introduction of a different mortality event; or
2. a change in the susceptibility or vulnerability of the population.

This is apparent in every age cohort of England between the week ending 4th October 2020 and 20th June 2021 (See Appendix). Every cohort has a break in the Gompertz function week-ending 13th December 2020.

This break coincides in every case with:

1. the emergence of "variants of concern" (VOCs); and
2. the introduction of COVID vaccination.

The question I expect you have thoroughly investigated in order to determine your position is which of these events is responsible. If the former then the significant increase in COVID-labelled mortality can be attributed to the VOCs. If the latter then you have a big problem.

If it is the former, another question I expect you can answer satisfactorily is why there were no VOCs anywhere until vaccinations started?

To test the two hypotheses above, I refer to the ONS Bulletin - "Coronavirus (COVID-19) Infection Survey, antibody and vaccination data, UK"³ which provides modelled data on expected percentage of each age cohort who have antibodies "to understand who has had the coronavirus (COVID-19) (sic) in the past, and the impact of vaccinations". I have obtained the COVID death data from the UK Coronavirus dashboard.⁴

Notwithstanding the caveats around the use of modelled data, what you find in the ONS report is that all of the increase in antibodies is accounted for by vaccination. It does not need a large degree of logical competence, therefore, to deduce that there could not have been an increase in natural infection during that same period.

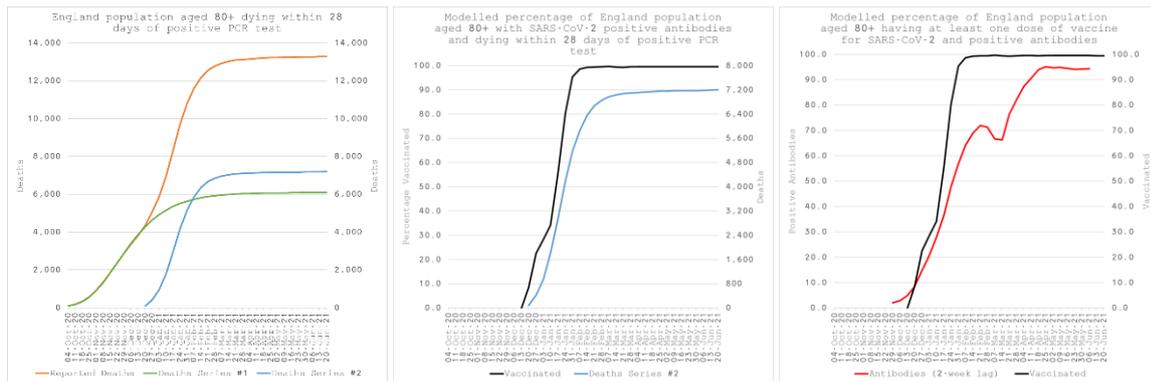

If that rules out VOCs as being responsible it is therefore likely to be the vaccines themselves that are responsible in some way for the significant increases in COVID mortality. Here are the charts for the over 80s that support this conclusion. The rest are in the Appendix.

Pathogenic priming as a result of coronavirus vaccination is well known.⁵ It is even reported in the Pfizer trial results and many other recent studies.⁶ What this suggests is that those vaccinated who have not had natural covid first are at risk early from immunosuppression.

Eminent French virologist Luc Montagnier, recipient of the 2008 Nobel Prize in Medicine for discovering the HIV virus made it clear that vaccinating in the middle of an epidemic is "unthinkable". He also makes valid claims suggesting that the VOCs are the product of the vaccination process.⁷ This again is not news in the science literature.⁸

Inevitably, the eminent scientist has been labelled as a conspiracy theorist in spite of his excellence in the field because he dares to contradict the official narrative, and an army of "fact checkers" are dispatched to discredit him and try to debunk his theory so you probably didn't discover him in your research? You must have noticed this when studying the SAGE minutes though, surely?

"The combination of high prevalence and high levels of vaccination creates the conditions in which an immune escape variant is most likely to emerge. The likelihood of this happening is unknown, but such a variant would present a significant risk both in the UK and internationally."⁹ Indeed.

In my opinion, the most plausible explanation is, therefore, that whilst there are levels of natural virus circulating, vaccination increases the size of the susceptible/vulnerable population and is responsible for the majority of deaths in the winter Gompertz distribution (series #2 in the charts). This amounts to over 23,500 deaths.

Is this short-term increase in mortality a price worth paying for long term protection? To answer that question, we can once again return to Gompertz. For evidence of vaccine efficacy, we should observe lower than expected mortality two weeks after full vaccination.

We see none. In fact, more often than not, we actually observe more mortality, not less, albeit on a much smaller scale than after the first dose.

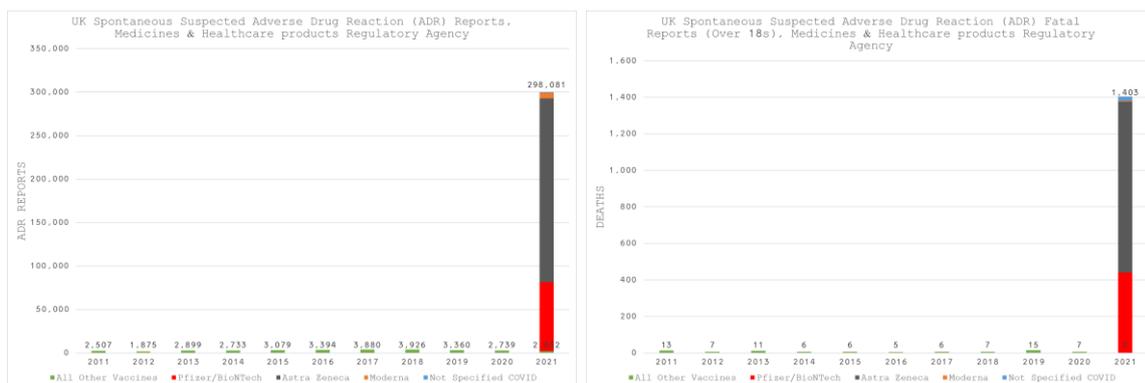

This may be from a poorly configured immune response based on the artificial spike used to generate immunity, not to mention lack of IgA response to vaccination meaning the first battle is in the bloodstream not the upper airways.

So, vaccines are responsible for most of the "second wave" COVID deaths in England last winter and provided no benefit whatsoever in terms of subsequent COVID mortality reduction.

What about other vaccine harm?

The data was only made available as a result of a Freedom of Information request but it shows that so far 2021 has already 98 times more suspected adverse drug reactions (ADRs) than the average of the last ten years and 169 times more fatal reports. Due to under-reporting, this can be considered the low end at 1,400 deaths.

I trust you studied the letter from Dr Tess Lawrie to the MHRA setting out her reasons for the vaccination program to be halted before the vote?¹⁰

So, that's over 1,400 vaccine harm deaths in addition to at least 23,500 COVID-labelled deaths as a result of the vaccination programme. And you voted in favour of mandating this injection of people devoting their working life to caring for the old and frail?

Perhaps, it's time to concede that our Parliament has made a bad situation demonstrably worse (and that's before we even consider the collateral harms of all your interventions)? Genuine protection of the vulnerable is something I advocated to you over a year ago and acknowledgement that reliance on nature would yield better outcomes than strategies dictated by big pharma profits.¹¹
